CHOICES FOR OUR FUTURE CITY

What We are Hearing: Indigenous Engagement

THE CITY PLAN

November 2018–June 2019
Acknowledgements

We acknowledge the traditional land on which Edmonton sits, the Territory of the Treaty 6 First Nations and the homelands of the Métis people. We would like to acknowledge and thank the diverse Indigenous peoples whose ancestors footsteps have marked this territory for centuries such as: Cree, Dene, Saulteaux, Nakota Sioux, Blackfoot, as well as the Métis and the Inuit. It is a welcoming place for all peoples who come from around the world to share Edmonton as a home. Together we call upon all of our collective honoured traditions and spirits to work in building a great city for today and future generations.

We would like to thank the Indigenous communities who participated in the engagement sessions. The contributions provided were greatly appreciated and it is hoped that the ideas, comments and input shared are reflected in these pages.
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The City of Edmonton recognizes that Edmonton lies within both Treaty 6 Territory and Region 4 of the Métis Nation of Alberta, with Indigenous peoples making significant contributions to Edmonton’s past, present, and future.

The following report provides an overview of the City Plan Project and its connections to four of the goals identified in ConnectEdmonton (Healthy City, Urban Places, Regional Prosperity and Climate Resilience) and one of Vision 2050’s principles “connected.”

From these goals and one principle, six City Plan Guiding Values were identified alongside five “Big City Moves.” The Guiding Values and “Big City Moves” informed the development of Indigenous engagement questions and activities.

City Plan engagements with Indigenous communities started in early 2019. Engagement events included a regional workshop, individual meetings, university student engagement, and attendance at urban Indigenous events throughout the city.

From the Indigenous feedback key themes emerged which were then reviewed for alignment with the Guiding Values and “Big City Moves” to identify areas for future policy, opportunities and challenges.

As The City Plan project moves forward, the key themes from Indigenous engagement and public engagement will be used to inform and shape policy for The City Plan.

As Edmonton verges on becoming a city of one million people, we need to look forward. We need to be ambitious in our outlook and clear in our intention. As Edmontonians, we make things happen; it is that drive that will push us beyond what we are today and help us plan and define our city at two million people. We need to plan together for the two million people who will choose Edmonton.

The City Plan is about people today but also about the people who are not yet here. It is about the young who will grow old in the community. It is about the future generations. It is about the people who make up this place – the Indigenous peoples, newcomers, settlers, investors, longtime residents and visitors. It is also about spaces and places and how we move around the city. It is about community and what we will need to do together to grow, adapt and succeed in a resilient future city.

The City Plan is about making choices together. What do we want the city to be? How can we build better connections? Who will we become?

Engagements with Indigenous communities have started answering those questions and telling us what they value about our city.
Building on ConnectEdmonton

Foundational to The City Plan are Council’s four goals identified as part of ConnectEdmonton – Healthy City, Urban Places, Regional Prosperity and Climate Resilience – and one principal “connected”.

The core principle, Connected, drives all of the work for the goals:

- We create as a community to connect people to what matters to them
- We care about the impact of our actions on our social, economic, cultural, spiritual and environmental systems
- We serve those here today and those who come after us

These goals, alongside the current City Plan engagement, provided the foundation for the development of The City Plan’s guiding values and city-building outcomes.
City Building Outcomes

Twenty-four City Building Outcomes describe what conditions will emerge in Edmonton’s future when Council’s four goals are actualized considering the desired experiences of Edmontonians. These guiding values and associated city building outcomes were presented to, and received for information by, Urban Planning Committee in November 2018.

For a full-sized Guiding Values matrix reference or The City Plan, please visit the website at www.edmonton.ca/thecityplan.
Guiding Values

Six guiding values as shown in Figure 1.0: City Plan Guiding Values below, articulate how Edmontonians want to experience their future city. The guiding values, Belong, and Live were changed to Connect and Community respectively to make them more relevant to regional partners. The definitions are not City Plan definitions and were used only for the purpose of Indigenous engagement. Understanding the commonalities and differences in values between Indigenous communities and the City Plan is an important component in achieving alignment and maintaining respectful relationships, now and into the future as the City of Edmonton continues to grow.

CONNECT (BELONG)
Shared in leadership, we celebrate wellness, diversity, culture and heritage.

COMMUNITY (LIVE)
Throughout the city we feel safe, accessing diverse housing and services, and sustainable infrastructure, businesses, schools, and places where we feel we can achieve our best.

THRIVE
We are all Treaty people, mutually benefiting from a diverse economy supported by talented people and sustainable investment.

ACCESS
Edmontonians and regional partners have access to safe public transit permitting access to neighbourhoods, businesses, and services throughout the city.

PRESERVATION
The river valley, parks, open spaces, and natural areas are important to all living things, and must be stewarded for future generations.

CREATIVITY & INNOVATION
Strong connections to arts and culture benefit everyone, fostering economic prosperity, and contributing to positive impacts both locally and globally.
Identifying the City Moves

The five Big City Moves, as shown in Figure 2.0: Big City Moves, are bold, visionary and coordinated directions to advance Edmonton’s city-building outcomes, representing concrete and intentional areas of change designed to respond to community values as the city grows. The moves chosen should serve the community well regardless of whether we decline in population, or grow fast or grow slow.

- GREENER AS WE GROW is about creating a city that is dedicated to preserving and protecting the environment through good design and conscious development decisions.

- A REBUILDABLE CITY is about working with what we have today and adapting and re-imagining our built environment to meet the needs of the future. Edmonton actively enables redevelopment.

- A COMMUNITY OF COMMUNITIES is about building connections to welcome new residents and developing housing, recreation and employment centres that are within reach.

- INCLUSIVE AND COMPASSionate is city-making that supports human-centred design where people of all ages, backgrounds and abilities can not only survive, but thrive.

- CATALYZE AND CONVERGE is about developing new physical and economic opportunities for ideas, talent and investment to come together.

For additional information on each of the Big City Moves, please visit the website at www.edmonton.ca/thecityplan.
2.1 INDIGENOUS RELATIONS

The City of Edmonton is located within both Treaty 6 Territory and Region 4 of the Métis Nation of Alberta, and has been a gathering place and traditional territory of Indigenous peoples since time immemorial. The Edmonton metropolitan region is also home to over 75,000 Indigenous peoples¹ (First Nations, Métis, and Inuit) who have and continue to make significant contributions to the city’s social, economic, and cultural prosperity.

The City is committed to engaging with Indigenous communities and peoples² when projects intersect with Indigenous interests and concerns. The City acknowledges that The City Plan project may be of interest to Indigenous communities and peoples, and believe in the importance of positive relationships with these communities within the spirit of the Memorandum Agreements. (See Appendix A).

An Indigenous Engagement Plan was developed to capture the reasons for engaging Indigenous peoples³ in the development of The City Plan and the specifics of how that engagement will take place. Three core Indigenous audiences were identified as part of the Indigenous Engagement Plan: Urban Indigenous peoples (or Indigenous peoples), Regional Indigenous communities (or Indigenous communities), and Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) Partners. Indigenous peoples includes residents of the City of Edmonton who are Indigenous. Indigenous communities includes those First Nations and Métis peoples with expressed historical and cultural connections to Edmonton. MOU Partners are those organizations who are partners with the City through a Memorandum Agreement, including: the Enoch Cree Nation, the Confederacy of Treaty Six First Nations, and the Métis Nation of Alberta.

The beginnings of engagement with Indigenous communities in and around Edmonton started with the City’s MOU Partners including Enoch Cree Nation, the Confederacy of Treaty Six First Nations, and the Métis Nation of Alberta. This process is part of the City’s commitment to build and maintain connections with First Nations and Métis communities with historic and cultural connections to the land where Edmonton is now located.

² The term Indigenous communities is used to refer to First Nations and Métis communities with expressed historical and cultural connections to Edmonton. The term Indigenous peoples is used to refer generally to individuals who self-identify as Indigenous and more specifically, to indigenous residents of Edmonton.
³ In the scope of this report, Indigenous peoples refer to those living in Edmonton, Regional communities, and MOU Partners.
2.2 PURPOSE OF INDIGENOUS COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

The purpose of engagement is to ensure Indigenous communities have the opportunity to be engaged, to share their perspectives about Edmonton’s future, and provide opportunities to hear from the unique voices and experiences of Indigenous peoples.

Input received from the public, stakeholders, Indigenous communities and peoples, as well as, City policies, technical studies, research modelling and scenarios will be taken into consideration to produce The City Plan. Recommendations are presented to City Council and they will make the final decisions on how the City will proceed.

Edmonton has been a traditional gathering place for millennia, a place to build relationships and prosperity, and this continues to be the case. Today, Indigenous peoples are moving to Edmonton for housing, employment and other opportunities, and also for reasons beyond their control.

A component of Edmonton’s growth will occur within our urban Indigenous population which has seen a nearly 50% increase between 2006 and 2016, making Edmonton the second largest urban Indigenous population of the major cities in Canada.

2.3 CITY–WIDE ENGAGEMENT

Indigenous and city–wide engagement were completed in parallel. City–wide engagement included:

- Open call workshops
- Stakeholder meetings
- Community meetings
- Online survey
- Story walks

City–wide engagement results can be found in Choices for Our Future City: City–Wide Engagement, available on www.edmonton.ca/thecityplan.

3.0 INDIGENOUS ENGAGEMENT

3.1 APPROACH

3.1.1 MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING PARTNERS

The City is committed to keeping Indigenous communities with historic and cultural connections to locations within city boundaries informed and engaged when projects intersect with Indigenous interests. To respect the Memorandum of Cooperation and Dialogue between the City and the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) partners, the City initiated a conversation with a brief overview of the City Plan project and its purpose. The City also requested feedback regarding their perspectives of the project and how they would like to be engaged until the project completion in 2020.

The MOU partner meetings shared the importance of engaging the youth, Elders, women, and individuals experiencing marginalization. Concerns were raised about Indigenous peoples moving to Edmonton including racism, discrimination and barriers to employment. These are long-term issues that can inform the City Plan dialogue. The importance of relationships between the City and Indigenous Nations, communities, and peoples was expressed, as well as the importance of understanding culture and history, and the existing interconnections between the Indigenous Nations and communities and the City were also highlighted.

The City Plan project overview was provided by the City with a discussion on Guiding Values and the Big City Moves. The intent of these meetings was to understand the diverse values and priorities of the Indigenous communities which will be used to help inform the policies that will be created for the City Plan project.
3.1.2 REGIONAL WORKSHOP

The City facilitated a Regional Workshop with an invitation to First Nations and the Métis communities to share their perspectives as regional partners on the City Plan Guiding Values and Big City Moves, as individuals who live, work, interact or visit Edmonton (or who may have family members or relatives who do). A total of 14 Indigenous communities and 45 representatives and members attended the Regional Workshop. Also in attendance were staff members from the City, and the City’s Indigenous engagement consultant. During the workshop, the City observed the cultural protocols to create a positive environment for the participants.

The City provided an overview presentation on the City Plan, project timeline, updates, engagements, topics of interest to Indigenous communities and urban Indigenous peoples, and next steps.

See Appendix B: City Plan Presentation.

WORKSHOP ACTIVITIES

The Indigenous communities participated in two workshop activities relating to City Plan Guiding Values and Big City Moves. A number of prompting questions were provided for each of the six Guiding Values and five Big City Moves. Tables were assigned a Guiding Value and Big City Move to start with and the group was given the opportunity to choose the next Guiding Value and Big City Move to discuss. Facilitators recorded the participants’ responses to the prompting questions on coloured post-it notes under the applicable Guiding Value and Big City Move. A presenter was identified to share back one or two important points with the entire group.

Following the workshop, all raw data from the engagement activities was gathered and transcribed, thematically coded, and organized into question responses and key themes relevant to the City’s Guiding Values, as laid out in the following sections of this report.
3.1.3 URBAN INDIGENOUS ENGAGEMENT

The City Plan Team reached out to engage urban Indigenous people and groups in Edmonton. Several Indigenous events were attended in the city to ensure opportunities were created to hear from the unique voices and experiences of urban Indigenous peoples. Worksheets were provided with questions relating to opportunities and challenges urban Indigenous peoples face as well the most important ideas to consider as Edmonton plans for the future. In addition, a children’s worksheet was provided with questions relating to how Edmonton can make the city greener and more welcoming as well as the types of jobs children would like in the future (See Image 1.0 below for examples). There was also space to draw what children think Edmonton will look like in the future.

Image 1.0: Examples of Children's Worksheets

In addition, an on-line survey was distributed in community bulletins/newsletters. There were 47 individuals who responded to the survey.

Following the workshops and on-line survey, all raw data from the engagement activities was gathered and scanned, the worksheets were transcribed, and thematically coded.
The following is a summary of what was heard collectively at all of the engagement sessions, and may not be specific to any one Indigenous community.

| Engagement + Relationship Building | ▪ Engage with Indigenous peoples to inform processes and initiatives that represent their interests
▪ Enhance relationship–building efforts with Indigenous communities |
| Design Considerations        | ▪ Collaborate and consider Indigenous peoples unique needs in the design of safe spaces, infrastructure and housing                                   |
| Acknowledgement              | ▪ Continue to acknowledge and recognize the traditional lands, treaties and peoples as part of the reconciliation process                           |
| Cultural Awareness           | ▪ Increased cultural awareness and access to cultural programs are essential to both urban Indigenous peoples and non-Indigenous people in Edmonton. |
| Community Support            | ▪ Providing access to safe meeting places for community and cultural support to enhance well-being is important to urban Indigenous peoples living in Edmonton. |
| Education                    | ▪ Affordable, year-round education, training and access to Elders are important for urban Indigenous peoples to achieve academic success.            |
| Green Spaces                 | ▪ Create more green spaces throughout the city and improve the walkability and safety of the neighbourhoods.                                      |
| Employment                   | ▪ Ensure Indigenous peoples have equitable access to jobs, training and employment opportunities                                                      |
| Security and Policing        | ▪ There needs to be an increase of security presence throughout the City that is respectful and inclusive of Indigenous peoples. There should be greater Indigenous representation in the police force and greater follow through/sentencing when crimes target Indigenous people. |
4.1.4  INDIGENOUS INPUT AND CITY PLAN POLICY MATRIX

Important themes emerged out of all of the Indigenous input the City received throughout its engagement. These themes have been presented below under each of the three groups, Urban Indigenous Peoples, Regional Indigenous communities, and MOU Partners. Upon review of each of the themes, 11 collective themes emerged which have been presented in Figure 3.0, Indigenous Input and City Plan Policy Matrix (see next page), and aligned with City Plan Guiding Values shown along the top of the figure and cross-referenced with policy intentions. These policies may change as the City Plan evolves.

The City Plan is a two year project and must be approved in conformance with the Edmonton Metropolitan Region Board by October 2020. This will include technical analyses, public and Indigenous engagement opportunities as well as regular Council check-ins with the Urban Planning Committee at key milestones.

The input received from Indigenous engagement will be shared back directly with the participating Indigenous community to facilitate verification and clarification of information. In addition, The City Plan Team will be circulating the draft plan and policies to Indigenous communities for review.

The City invites Indigenous communities to stay in touch. Please contact thecityplan@edmonton.ca for any questions/comments.

2. Continue technical study, modelling and evidence-based research to inform and educate
3. Continued engagement with public and stakeholder
4. Preparation of draft concept plan for land use and transportation
5. Modernization of current city-wide policy framework
URBAN PLANNING COMMITTEE (FEBRUARY 12)

Report Summary - Framing the Plan: City Moves and Levers

- Context for change:
  - Current Trends
  - Essential and Future City
- Public Engagement used to inform City Moves
- City Moves and Levers for Change
- Moving Forward

EMERGENT THEMES FROM ENGAGEMENT

- Let’s make a city with a multi-modal, interconnected transportation network
- Let’s make a city with identifiable urban villages/districts/nbhd hearts
- Let’s be a Treaty city
- Let’s identify nodes and corridors to focus our activity and investment
- Let’s create flexible policy that accommodates innovation
- Let’s increase the density of our city
- Let’s make buildings, blocks and streets for people
- Let’s focus on the river valley
- Let’s be a food city
- Let’s be fiscally responsible
- Let’s be a city of climate refuge
A Big City Move is a bold, visionary and coordinated direction to advance Edmonton’s city-building outcomes.
GREENER AS WE GROW

Is about creating a city that is dedicated to preserving and protecting the environment through good design and conscious development decisions.

A REBUILDABLE CITY

Is about working with what we have today and continuously adapting and re-imagining our built environment to meet the needs of the future. Edmonton actively enables redevelopment.
A COMMUNITY OF COMMUNITIES

Is about building connections to welcome new residents and developing housing, recreation and employment centres that are within reach.

INCLUSIVE AND COMPASSIONATE

Is city-making that supports human-centred design where people of all ages, backgrounds and abilities can not only survive, but thrive.
CATALYZE AND CONVERGE

Is about developing new physical and economic opportunities for ideas, talent and investment to come together.
