The Province is continuing to review its budget and priorities for funding various housing programs, including the provision of affordable and supportive housing for seniors.

In view of the uncertainty of Provincial funding for 2014, the City is exploring the feasibility of developing a seniors pilot project with the Greater Edmonton Foundation on one of the approved seniors housing sites in southeast Edmonton.

This pilot project will be based on a staged development concept that provides a range of housing choice from independent living to supportive living, with on-site health services. The first stage will focus on a mix of affordable and market housing that the City can achieve without additional Provincial funding, with the second stage designed to provide supportive living options based on future Provincial funding.
