Redevelopment Planning Update

What We Heard Report #3 Now Available

Over the past two months, the Exhibition Lands project team has been busy engaging Edmontonians and stakeholders on proposed redevelopment concepts for the site. From September through October, we held two public workshops sessions, ran a public online survey, and met with community, Indigenous, business and special interest groups to present the concepts and gather feedback on what Edmontonians liked and disliked about the proposed concepts. The results of this engagement have been compiled into our Phase 3 What We Heard Report, now available online.

The Exhibition Lands project has now entered Phase 4: Concept Refinement. As such, we are preparing a draft preferred concept based on what we've heard from Edmontonians and different City departments, as well as ongoing market analysis and technical input. Once drafted, the preferred concept will be shared with Urban Planning Committee, the public and other stakeholders in early 2019 to help us further refine the vision for the future of the Exhibition Lands.

What's Happening at the Exhibition Lands

With the start of winter upon us, site animation of the Coliseum site has ended for 2018. The City will be reviewing how site animation activities performed over the past year and will be investigating appropriate next steps.
