This series of paintings is inspired by the quiet spaces where Elders and Youngers sit together. They learn so much from each other through observation and careful contemplation.

It is my hope to have as many of these moments as humanly possible as both.

Dawn Marie Marchand, Cree/Metis Artist
Indigenous Edmonton is a dynamic, vibrant, and energetic community. It is young, entrepreneurial, educated, culturally active, artistic, and caring. It is the home of the second largest urban Aboriginal population in Canada, and lies in the heart of Treaty No. 6 territory.

The “Indigenous community” is not one community, but “many communities”, and is, therefore, a reflection of the diverse and multifaceted Aboriginal population that makes Edmonton their home. The Indigenous peoples in Edmonton have roots that are deeply sown and well-traveled throughout the whole of the City and extend from the past, through to the present, and will continue well into the future.

The City of Edmonton has built upon the work initiated by the Edmonton Aboriginal Urban Affairs Committee to collaboratively reproduce, with communities, this directory with the intent to help you navigate the diverse and friendly Edmonton. We hope you find it useful. Your feedback and suggestions are welcomed.

How to Use This Directory

Boyle Street Community Services

10116 - 105 Avenue
Edmonton, AB T5E 6N7

PHONE: 780-424-4106
WEBSITE: www.boylestreet.org

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty. First established in 1971 as a small storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity.
and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities.

Heather Shillinglaw has had over 25 solo exhibitions and numerous group shows. Known worldwide for her unique blending of traditional beadwork with mixed media and nature. Art has been an inspiration for her since she was a child, her dreams of being an artist flourished as she received a BFA from Alberta College of Art and Design in 97.

Her working palette is various methods of collaging and as she fuses these materials together the meaning and imagery from our landscape sets the focus on the healing powers of our prairies and boreal forests. Within her work there are threads of environmental awareness in both her paintings and sculptural pieces. She has learned from elders, medicine women and via cultural sharing while... studying indigenous medicinal plants and sustainability for communities. As this has affected my passion and practice I have had invitations for speaking engagements in the USA, South America and Europe. My artwork can be found in many collections of both private and corporate collections, larger scale public works include the Fort McMurray TOTAL Aboriginal Interpretive Trail where you can find my newest piece ‘Sky Spirit Courage of Mother Bear’. As an artist I take a holistic approach and share my art by teaching workshops and giving lectures about my work and the importance of art speaking the voice of protecting our environment to what will be left for future generations.

Aksis - Edmonton's Aboriginal Business and Professional Association, is a membership driven not-for-profit organization created to serve as a central meeting point that inspires Edmonton's Aboriginal business and professional community to connect, collaborate and flourish. The organization launched its operations in late 2013, serving a membership of 100+ Indigenous businesses and professionals, along with Indigenous student and non-Indigenous associate members.

Aksis is focused on assisting in the development of its member businesses and professionals by:

Providing referral and pathfinding/navigating services to business and professional supports, Facilitating linkages and connections between and amongst the larger business community, and Serving as the catalyst to creating a voice of its membership at key decision making tables.

Aksis Vision: to make Edmonton the Aboriginal Business Capital of Canada.

Aksis Mission: to grow the Aboriginal business and professional community.

The organization has extensive knowledge and experience working with and developing Edmonton's Aboriginal business and professional community for the benefit of the greater Edmonton metropolitan area. This is accomplished through the many activities that Aksis provides to its members, such as business workshops, lunch and learns, co-hosting trade shows, networking events, industry dialogues, golf tournaments, as well as annual celebrations to acknowledge the exceptional contributions of its members to the Edmonton and area economy.

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty. First established in 1971 as a small storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities.

Boyle Street Education Centre (BSEC)

Our model starts with the student’s needs and builds a plan for engagement around their interests and goals for themselves. Our teaching staff understands how to start where the students are and know when extra supports are needed to remove barriers to learning. Our cross-functional student services staff help students navigate around barriers and inform teachers how to best serve each student's unique learning needs.

Mission: We believe that both well-being and learning are necessary components of a healthy student. We are committed to offering an inclusive and accessible educational space promoting education, healing and self-growth for all students.

Our programs provide:
- Flexible programming to help students complete high school at their own pace.
- Customized course planning according to student need.
- Decolonizing educational practices as part of our efforts to meet the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Calls to Action for education.
- Work experience program to support success in the workplace after school.
- Support for eligible students to access Alberta's Learner's Benefits program.
- In-house counselling for social-emotional support, connections to a Physician, youth worker support, yoga classes, therapeutic massage, trauma support animals, and much more!

The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms gives Canadian citizens the right to vote in provincial elections. Elections Alberta is the official steward of that right on behalf of Albertans. Elections Alberta is an independent, non-partisan office of the Legislative Assembly responsible for administering provincial elections, by-elections and referenda. We administer the Election Act and the provincial electoral process in this province. We are responsible for administering elections at the provincial level specifically.

At Elections Alberta, we encourage all persons to explore the democracy in which we live. It is our goal to inspire all Albertans to vote and to help every citizen learn how they... can help shape our province. Whether you are: young or old, new to Canada, multi-generational, or indigenous, sheltered or homeless, disabled, incarcerated, or in the Canadian Forces … we’re here to support you.

The Association has purchased 16 supportive housing units for large Aboriginal families. The intent is to provide long-term housing, creating a stable environment. Support services include regular visits and supports by Amisk, as well as links to other community services (drug and alcohol treatment, education or physical or mental abuse counselling), and visits from referring case workers if required.

Boyle Street Community Services

Boyle Street Community Services is a non-profit Edmonton agency which assists individuals and families challenged by homelessness and poverty. First established in 1971 as a small storefront operation, the agency has grown to meet the needs of its client community, and now each year more than 12,000 people – more than 70 per cent of whom are of Aboriginal descent – access the wide range of supports and services which are available.

Many of our daily clients are either sleeping rough or in shelters. They are all, without exception, extremely poor, and many of them are marginalized because of their ethnicity and their poverty. At our centre in the inner city we do all we can to support them. We provide cultural, outreach, mental health, housing, family and youth and employment services as well as a drop-in where the community can enjoy great food, warmth and companionship.

We also have group homes in different Edmonton locations which are for children and at risk youth ranging in age from two to 17. And in the northeast of the city we own a 62-unit apartment building which houses many people who were previously homeless. We also partner with other agencies to provide services which complement those offered by Boyle Street. These range from child and youth focused programs to needle exchange and health supports for street involved sex trade workers. At the heart of our work, we listen, care and empower our clients in order to assist them to find solutions. Our community members are diverse, and we welcome everyone. We serve adults, youth and families and act as a knowledgeable resource for aboriginal, LGBTQ and new immigrant communities."

Provide Affordable Housing to Aboriginal and Non-Aboriginal for Families, Singles, Seniors and people with physical disabilities. Please contact us for more information on what is currently available and the qualifications.
NCSA has been providing programs and services designed and delivered for Indigenous people, by Indigenous people in Alberta for over 50 years. We started by providing Courtworker assistance with the goal of attaining fair and equitable treatment for Indigenous people across the province. Over the years, NCSA has evolved to meet the needs of Indigenous people who often feel alienated by complex legal and court procedures. Our family and youth programs, family, youth and criminal Indigenous Courtwork programs, two correctional institutions for Indigenous offenders (Buffalo Sage Wellness House and Stan Daniels Healing Centre), and BearPaw Media and Education position NCSA as a leader in the development of restorative justice models and practices for Indigenous people.

NCSA’s 40+ year history of producing high quality Indigenous training and resource production/distribution is unparalleled by any other organization.

Our mission is to promote the resilience of the Indigenous individual and family, through programs and services that are grounded in reclaiming our interconnectedness, reconciliation of relationships and self-determination.

“The Northern Alberta Cooperative Housing Association (NACHA) is a federation of Housing Cooperatives. We provide a variety of services to our membership and to the public who are interested in finding out more about cooperative housing. We offer a variety of information/resources including a monthly public information session that can assist families in becoming a members of a housing cooperative project.

How To Apply: Edmonton area co-ops have very long waiting lists. You can expect anywhere from a 3 month to 5 year wait for a vacancy. Please be aware that not all co-ops have subsidies available.

Attend manadatory information session, Select co-ops of interest from the co-op listing, Apply to each co-op individually following their specific application process.

Notes:
1. NACHA is not involved in the placement of families in its member housing co-ops.
2. Co-op Application fees range between $20-30. Before you apply for housing, it is a good idea to get a copy of your credit report to make sure there are no mistakes or old information that will affect your application.”

Our House Addiction Recovery Centre is a 12-month residential treatment facility for men with addictions. We offer an evidence based program in a therapeutic community. Please note that short term treatment and/or detox may be required prior to admission. We do not permit residents to work during the first 6 months and only part time after that until treatment is completed.
The Alberta Family Information Unit (FILU) is a single point of contact to support families with Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls. The FILU assist families by: providing system navigation, including within the criminal justice system and other government entities; connecting families with community supports and culturally safe services, including Elders and other specialized supports such as victim services; providing outreach to reduce barriers; providing specialized knowledge and support regarding grief and loss, trauma, ambiguous loss and circle facilitation; engaging with other jurisdictions including the USA on the clients behalf; and providing funding support (including protocol) to families to attend healing and support events, court proceedings and family meetings with information providers.

FILU services are culturally safe. This means services are provided through an Indigenous lens with insight and understanding of Indigenous history and the resulting intergenerational impacts. A facilitated referral approach/warm transfer is use to address the resulting marginalization experienced by many families. All the Family Information Liaisons are also Indigenous and MMIWG family members.

The Alberta Human Rights Act ensures that all Albertans are offered an equal opportunity to earn a living, find a place to live, and enjoy services customarily available to the public without discrimination. The Alberta Human Rights Commission is an independent commission created by the Government of Alberta and carries out functions under the act. The Commission has a two-fold mandate: to foster equality and to reduce discrimination. It fulfills this mandate through public education and community initiatives, through the resolution and settlement of complaints of discrimination, and through human rights tribunal and court hearings.

The Stan Daniels Healing Centre is a facility that has both a Community Correctional Centre and a Section 81 designation. Residents at the Centre are either conditionally released offenders (day parole or full parole/statutory release with residency). Stan Daniels Healing Centre offers a variety of personal development programs that address issues of grief and loss, and relationships and violence. The “In Search of Your Warrior” Violent Offender Healing Program has been recognized by the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) as an effective, Aboriginal specific program that addresses the needs of Aboriginal violent offenders. The program has now been implemented in institutions in Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Quebec through a partnership between the Correctional Service of Canada and NCSA. The Stan Daniels Healing Centre has offered the program as both an “in-house” program during the winter, and in a “bush camp” format throughout the summer months. The women’s adaptation, “Spirit of A Warrior” is offered in institutions for women as well.

NCSA has been providing programs and services designed and delivered for Indigenous people, by Indigenous people in Alberta for over 50 years. We started by providing Courtworker assistance with the goal of attaining fair and equitable treatment for Indigenous people across the province. Over the years, NCSA has evolved to meet the needs of Indigenous people who often feel alienated by complex legal and court procedures. Our family and youth programs, family, youth and criminal Indigenous Courtwork programs, two correctional institutions for Indigenous offenders (Buffalo Sage Wellness House and Stan Daniels Healing Centre), and BearPaw Media and Education position NCSA as a leader in the development of restorative justice models and practices for Indigenous people.

NCSA’s 40+ year history of producing high quality Indigenous training and resource production/distribution is unparalleled by any other organization.

Our mission is to promote the resilience of the Indigenous individual and family, through programs and services that are grounded in reclaiming our interconnectedness, reconciliation of relationships and self-determination.
