Program Overview

The City of Edmonton's Anti-racism Grant Program supports the Anti-racism Strategy and the Anti-Black Racism Action Plan, which are intended to address all forms of racism and discrimination. Our investments help:

- Address racially-motivated hate;
- Build community capacity and cultural understanding;
- Promote awareness, training and education; or
- Support research, monitoring and evaluation on diversity, anti-racism and/or discrimination in Edmonton.

Anti-racism is defined as, "the active, ongoing strategy and process that seeks to identify and eliminate racism by changing systems, institutions, policies and attitudes that perpetuate racism." For more information please refer to Defining Racism.

This year, a total of $1,860,000 in funding is available for local collectives* and not-for-profit organizations.

*Local collectives are informal community groups supporting community work towards inclusion and are not necessarily registered as a formal organization.

The grant program has five (5) funding streams intended to help achieve the following three (3) outcomes:

- Edmontonians are aware of the impact of racism and have a greater understanding of how to take action to address racism and discrimination.
- Edmontonians are knowledgeable about the community organizations that work to dismantle systemic racism (interpersonal, institutional, and structural).
- Edmontonians are working together to build a diverse, inclusive, and equitable city.

Collaboration and Partnerships

Collaboration between organizations/collectives is strongly encouraged across all grant streams.

Formal partnerships will require one of the following:

- a memorandum of understanding (MOU);
- an agreement; and/or
- a commitment letter.

These documents must clearly identify the roles and responsibilities of the partners and their commitment to the project.

- This funding is for local collectives or organizations looking to implement actions in the Anti-Black Racism Action Plan through collaboratives and/or partnerships.

Grant Priorities

As part of the application, you will be asked to identify what form of racism you are addressing:

- Between People (Interpersonal): This is about negative feelings and actions between individuals. It can be things we say or do without even thinking, like microaggressions, or more obvious things like racial bullying, discrimination, and hate crimes.
- Within Organizations (Institutional): This happens when schools, workplaces, and other organizations have rules and policies that unfairly favor the dominant group. Even if they don't say anything about race, these rules can lead to unfair outcomes.

- Throughout Society (Structural and Societal): This is about the big, long-term ways our society is set up that give some racial groups more advantages than others. It affects many different parts of our lives. This is about the big, long-term ways our society is set up that give some racial groups more advantages than others.

Please see the definitions for more information.

Applicants must clearly demonstrate how their project meets one or more of the Anti-racism Grant Program outcomes and focus areas:

- Mental Health: Mental health is crucial for overall well-being. This is possible when someone is able to manage stress, use their talents, learn effectively, is able to contribute, and feels a part of the community.
- Employment: Gainful employment is work that provides a steady, regular income and enough money to live on. It requires access to skill-building, training, constructive guidance, and/or workplace adjustments. It also includes accessible tools for individuals with disabilities, clear paths for promotion, and offers fair pay in a safe and encouraging environment.
- Education: Education can be formal or informal. Education helps gain essential societal values, build literacy, and foster critical thinking for personal and community development. Education is gained through school or outside of a formal setting, and includes diverse ways that we learn and grow through knowledge and experience.
- Food Security: Food security means that everyone has reliable access to enough food that is affordable and healthy. It can also mean having access to foods that are important to different cultures.
- Disability: Responding to disability challenges requires physical accessibility, respectful communication and systemic inclusion. The World Health Organization (WHO) defines disability as a broad term that includes:
 - Impairments: Issues with how your body functions or is structured.
 - Activity Limitations: Difficulties doing things like walking or reading.
 - Participation Restrictions: Challenges getting involved in social activities or work.

* Racism and other forms of discrimination often overlap, creating compounding and complex systemic barriers for Indigenous and culturally diverse communities/collectives. These focus areas create an opportunity for collectives and organizations to meaningfully address one or more systems of oppression.
